

2006-2011, a lot many changes happened to me during these five years. The very way I, used to perceive my world got a beating and

I got a fresh and realistic perspective of everything around me.

And that is how an architect is meant to be. Thanks to GCA and my heartfelt gratitude to my wonderful faculties.

Being the first batch we did have certain difficulties initially but eventually everything fell into place and am glad saying this that all of my friends are doing well. In fact, the few hurdles that we faced during the initial phase made us confident and instilled a sense of self dependence

Regarding my friends, we really had a wonderful time in college. We were never serious but sincere enough. It's getting quite difficult for me to put the fun we had into words, and I think it's for good because if I actually start describing all the silly things that we did my writing will never come to a halt.

I hope that my juniors are living the GCA experience as I did and in the process learning the profession to its core.
